Numerous examples prove that transboundary water is a UN-WATER source of border facilitated transboundary water cooperation initiatives.

In 2014, UNECE supported nationally led peacebuilding programmes in 21 countries across Africa, Asia, Central America, Europe and Middle East.

In 2014, UNDP supported an election in over 40 countries. In 2014 it helped to register 18 million new voters.

In 2014, UNIDIR designed the ISACS Assessment Tool to allow policymakers to assess how their practices on small arms control align with International Standards.

In 2014, UN ESCAP works to neutralize the threat nuclear weapons pose so that future generations can enjoy their right to life, liberty and security.

The Geneva Centre for Security Policy trains policy makers and diplomats to prevent and resolve conflicts in the cyberspace and helps the UN system to improve its peace operations through better use of Information and Communication Technologies (ICT) and new media.

For 65 years, ICDO has worked to protect civil populations in time of peace and during war.

In 2015, the Sustainable Development Goals designed the ISACS Assessment Tool to allow policymakers to assess how their practices on small arms control align with International Standards.

In 2014, UNDP was active in 38 fragile and conflict-affected states and implemented over 360 projects that support decent work for peacebuilding and recovery.

In 2015, the IPU hosted nearly 200 young people from 65 countries for the Global Conference of Youth Parliamentarians to identify ways of addressing major challenges impacting youth today in the areas of democracy, peace and prosperity.

In 2015, the IPU contributed to education for peace.

In 2014, the World Future Council responded to crisis in over 40 countries since 1999.

In 2014, the World Future Council responded to crisis in over 40 countries since 1999.

Peace is more than the absence of war.

A selection of International Geneva’s work to promote peace.