Article 4 - Recording, retaining and transmission of information

Alan Macdonald
UNMAS Programmes
03 April 2014
Article 4 - Recording, Retaining and Transmission of Information

• Article and technical annex to the Protocol on Explosive remnants of War

• General provision and scope – responsibilities; recording, retaining and transmission

• Humanitarian response; security response – examples: Afghanistan – cluster munitions, firing ranges. Libya – strikes, bunkers; Mali;
Article 4 - Recording, Retaining and Transmission of Information
collaboration and issues

- States and Regional Arrangements
- Consistency
- Higher level and Local arrangements - context
- Timeliness
Article 4 - Recording, Retaining and Transmission of Information
challenges and issues

• Clarity on what is needed from High Contracting Parties – and what is not needed – or indeed what can be released -- type / quantity

• Technical Annex - declassifying the classified

• Common understanding

• How could transmission be improved